

Hello Again!

With all your Super powers
please, please open me up...

Ahhhh, thank you!

I wanted to let you know that International SuperTech Day is coming up Friday, June 25.

The Top Ten Reasons to Participate in International SuperTech Day

- 10 If a large, prominent organization elected to establish International (Insert Your Name Here) Day, wouldn't you want someone to participate?
- 9 Many studies have shown that respect and recognition are the most important factors relating to job satisfaction and people who feel appreciated by their employers and co-workers are generally unlikely to seek alternative employment.
- 8 Door systems technicians protect people and property which is a remarkably important role to play in society and deserves more recognition.
- 7 If you do something that involves family members, you will get free word-of-mouth advertising when these people return to their neighborhoods and tell their friends what a great company you have.
- 6 The day can be used as a hub for promoting your company as one that uses professional, skilled technicians who are most qualified to install and service their door systems.
- 5 They wear your company logo, drive your trucks and meet face-to-face with your customers every working day of the year.
- 4 If you were once an installer, can you recall how much it meant to you – or would have meant to you – to get a pat on the back for a job well done?
- 3 It is a simple, cost-effective way to promote company unity and camaraderie.
- 2 Your technicians deserve it.

Your hard-earned reputation is determined by the work your technicians perform each time they install, repair, drop test or inspect a door. Each customer they serve will base his or her opinion about your company's reputation on the experience they have when interacting with that technician. Considering this is a priceless contribution to your reputation, isn't taking a special day to honor your employees worth it?

Suggested Ways to Celebrate International SuperTech Day

The 13th annual International SuperTech Day has been established as June 25. Industry leaders envision a wide range of official activities and promotional events that will culminate around this day of recognition and are asking dealers to use the day to honor and recognize field personnel for their valuable contributions to their company, customers and community.

IDA and IDEA would like to hear your ideas. Send us photos and descriptions of your International SuperTech Day celebration so we can share your great ideas with the rest of the industry. In the meantime, here are some suggestions you may want to consider:

- Give your techs a gift. This doesn't need to be a costly venture. Gift cards or certificates to a local restaurant or retailer are always popular.
- Provide a company breakfast, luncheon or cookout and include all other company employees. Maybe even consider inviting your technician's family members!
- Hang a banner in front of your business.
- Write a personal note of thanks for their good work and dedication.
- Have a team meeting and announce (if you aren't already doing so) that each of your technicians will have the opportunity to earn one or more IDEA technician certifications.
- If you are in the process of certifying technicians, consider contacting IDEA about the possibility of having a presentation of certificates on SuperTech Day.
- Provide a sporty new shirt – golf-style, denim or otherwise – as a gift.
- Have an outside service wash and detail their company trucks. The benefit of this type of recognition is it's personal, gratifying and gives each of them a clean truck for at least one day out of the year.
- If you have company awards or recognition events you normally hold once a year, consider moving your event to SuperTech Day.
- Be creative and think of something that would just be fun. Consider such activities as a fishing or Texas Hold 'Em tournament, rent a bowling alley for a couple of hours, or take over a public park for an afternoon (remember to bring a banner to gain residual advertising benefits.)

And here's something worth considering if you are ambitious about International SuperTech Day: Find a local charity or widely-recognized worthy cause and make a contribution in the names of your technicians as a way to honor them. Have press releases sent to your local newspaper, television and radio stations, announcing the contribution (it's even better if you can get the charity to send the press releases on their letterhead). Be sure to send a group photo with the names of your technicians clearly identified. There are never any guarantees, but if properly executed, this technique has an excellent chance of putting your technicians' smiling faces in the local newspaper and possibly mentioned on the evening news. This would make them and their families very proud, and give you a very nice item suitable for framing to hang in your showroom.
